

More Than Enough

I've been more than discontent
In my quest of finding love
On the floor taking pieces of my heart
Back from those I've tried to find my worth

But never could I be so clever
As to fill my heart up on my own
So while I was chasing my good intentions
You were calling me out to lead me back home, so

I believe in a love without end
A love that on me, it does not depend
Cause Someone had to die to show that
He cares more than enough
Oh now I believe in love

I know there's a depth to momma's love
I won't find anywhere else on earth
But Daddy's sending gifts from up above
To show no other love is close

So never could I be loved better
Than from my Father sitting high upon His throne
Cause when I was dead in my own transgressions
He was calling me out to bring me back home

I believe in a love without end
A love that on me, it does not depend
Cause Someone had to die to show that
He cares more than enough
Oh now I believe in love

Written by Corey Nolen
Copyright Corey Nolen

www.etherealband.com