

Where Do You Go?

Where do you go when you feel you're all alone?
Where do you go when you feel you're all alone?
Where do you run when you feel it coming on?
Where do you hide from the pain that's sure to come?

Hold your head up
Don't seek your shelter from the storm

So do you think your world would all but fall a part
If you should lose this fight and have to drop your guard
A little pain might just bring a change of heart
And be the very thing to bring another start

Hold your head up
Don't seek your shelter from the storm

Stand in the rain just to feel it coming down
To wash away all the past you keep around
Have faith in a new way, believe in a brand new day
And say goodbye to these things that bring you down

Hold your head up, hold your head up
Don't seek your shelter from the storm

Written by Corey Nolen
Copyright Corey Nolen

www.etherealband.com